Christopher Doucot is a founder of the Hartford Catholic Worker Community, Adjunct instructor of Sociology in several local universities, where he has taught race, class, nonviolence, and the author of “No Innocent Bystanders.” He is a son, husband, father, neighbor, stranger, and aspiring Christian seeking to love his neighbors and enemies as he loves himself.

Chris's presentation, “Racism Without Racists,” will cover structural racism and answer the following questions:

- What are the origins of race in colonial America and its current day consequences?
- How is racism more than individual acts motivated by prejudice?
- What are some concrete steps toward achieving racial justice?

The virtual conference will continue throughout the year with monthly webinars and events.
